

Valbin JMRC Mission Support

Who we are: Valbin supports the US Army's Joint Multinational Readiness Center (JMRC) in Hohenfels, Germany by providing Role Players, often referred to as COBs (Civilians on the Battlefield). The work of a COB is to act as if you are in a battlefield or disaster situation. You will be provided a script but will be required to improve your role as you react to the situations.

How long are rotations? Rotations will last, on average, 22-28 days. It is mandatory you stay on base during the entire rotation. The average shift will be 8+ hours long with breaks.

Available Positions: We are currently looking for both Full-Time and Part-Time COBs. Full-time COBs would be required to work about 10 rotations/year. Part-Time COBs are able to choose which rotations they want to work. You can find a complete list of available positions and requirements on our website.
